

Jennifer Renk is a twenty-two-year-old artist based in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. In her work, she explores her doubts as an artist and as an individual. She believes it's essential to confront these uncertainties through her art rather than concealing her insecurities. Her art often reflects themes of identity, self-perception, and the societal bias women face, using mixed media to explore these ideas from a personal and feminist perspective.